Litigation Documents Made Easy

CUTTING-EDGE DOCUMENT
AUTOMATION BUILT FOR LITIGATORS, BY LITIGATORS.

COME SEE WHAT EasyPleader
CAN DO FOR YOU...

Beyond "Forms": This is Game-Changing Document Automation

- Point-and-click generation of articulate, precision-tailored civil litigation documents.
- 90-second meet-and-confer letters; 5-minute Separate Statements.
- This isn't filler text, copy-and-paste, or fill-in-the-blank "templates." It's your real case, your real caption, in a print-ready document with substantive argument and perfectly formatted legal citations.

More than just document "shells."

Generate on-point, substantive content like this—without typing a word:

1 Paula Patterson's response to Special Interrogatory No. 14 does not comply with the Civil Discovery
 2 Act because it is improper for a response to claim that another person or party has knowledge of
 3 unspecified facts or else possession of evidence in support of the responder's claims or denials. When a
 4 discovery request asks a party to identify facts, documents, or other evidence in support of its claims or
 5 denials, it is not valid to respond by citing to unspecified "facts known to" another party, or "writings" or
 6 "documents" claimed to be within another party's possession. (Liberty Mutual Fire Ins. Co. v. LcL
 7 Administrators, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal.App.4th 1093, 1102 ["by specifying as supporting documents the 8 entire compendium of [plaintiff's] workers' compensation files, [defendant's] responses were 9 worthless."].)

We are California litigators worn out by never-ending copy/paste, retyping, reformatting, and other mindless mechanical aspects of generating competent litigation work product. We set out to build a system to automate the most common documents and legal scenarios to boost our efficiency and generate better-quality documents. Now we're offering our creation to the public to improve the lives of in-the-trenches litigators by decomplicating the mechanics of the job while letting them focus on real advocacy and real results for their clients.
